

The logo for 'The Workshop' is located in the top left corner. It consists of the words 'The' and 'Workshop' stacked vertically in a white, sans-serif font. The text is enclosed within a square frame that has a pattern of diagonal orange lines.

The Workshop

Narratives for Change: Communicating for Deepening Understanding

IPANZ. October 2021

Dr Jess Berentson-Shaw

theworkshop.org.nz

the WORKSHOP

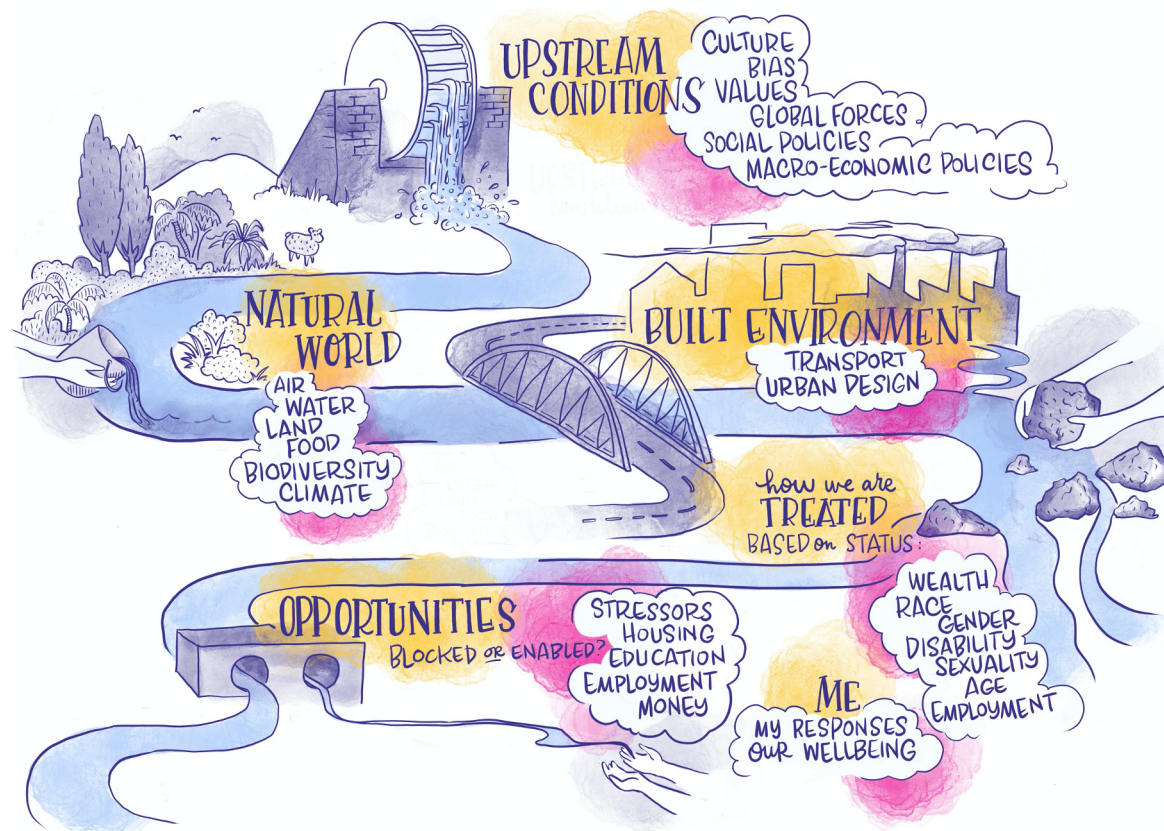

Writing & guides

Our Vision

People need changes that make the biggest difference

Why do people not always see or understand the upstream issues and support that action?

Fast brains use short cuts

Fast thinking can be both helpful and unhelpful

Fast brains can surface unhelpful thinking in relation to complex issues

Narratives
shape and bring to the surface particular ways of thinking

The bootstrap mindset and narrative influences understanding

A trip down John Key's struggle street

MARTIN VAN BEYNEN • 08:37, Sep 15 2014

Stripe co-founder John Collison is the youngest self-made tech billionaire in the world, Forbes reports. He's pictured here at the 2014 Web Summit. Photo / Getty

The surprising personality trait rich people share

7 Dec, 2018 12:16 PM

🕒 3 minutes to read

Millionaire tells millennials: if you want a house, stop buying avocado toast

Australian real estate mogul Tim Gurner advised young people to solve their housing woes by putting their '$22 a pop' toast toward a deposit instead

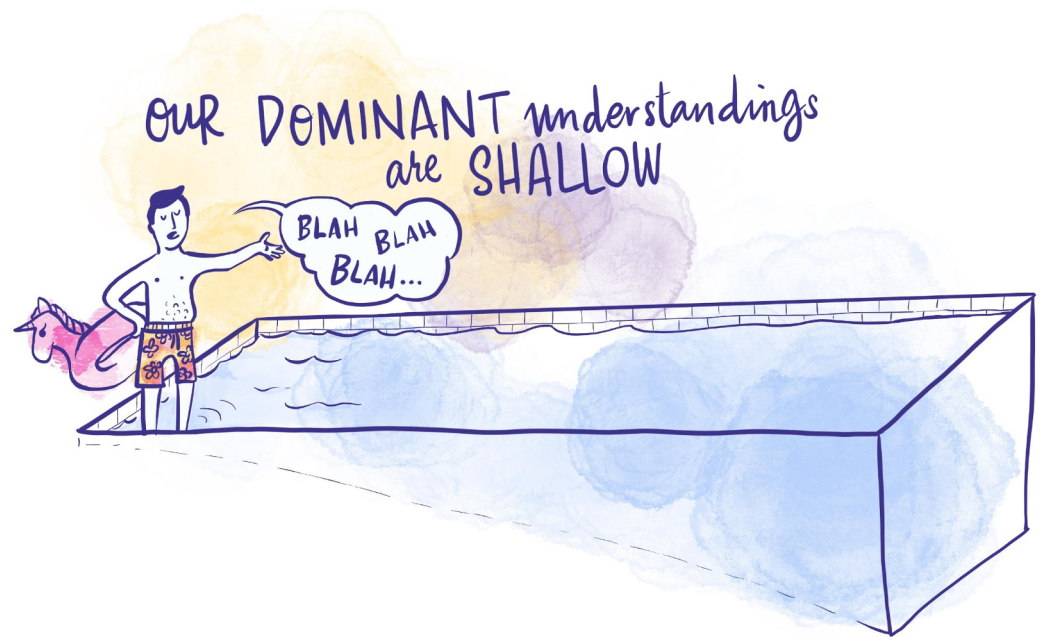

▲ 'When I was trying to buy my first home, I wasn't buying smashed avocado.' Photograph: Vladislav Nosick/Getty

False information (including minimisation) is political.

Fast thinking + mindsets + particular narratives
=
Unhelpful thinking

We treat failure to understand as an individual cognitive weakness, or a deficit of information

NEW ZEALAND / COVID-19

Covid-19 scepticism a failing of intellect, Phil Goff says

10:20 am on 11 September 2020

Share this

Auckland Mayor Phil Goff says people in the city are, by and large, following the rules and prosecution shouldn't be ruled out for those who break them or spread misinformation.

Our mindset leads to default communication

- We don't connect with the people we need to (we focus on ideological opposed people)
- We lead with the problems
- We lead with facts & science
- Give time to the story we don't want to tell
- Myth-bust & rebut false information (making people more familiar with unhelpful information)
- Focus on “emotional stories”

GOOD NEWS!

Most people can understand things differently with different narratives

A narrative strategy for information can shift mindsets, and deepen understanding

— Science of Narratives —

MANY WAYS of KNOWING

— Three phases of narrative change —

Identify existing mindsets and narratives

Strategy to bring to the surface helpful thinking

Equip fields of practice

Identifying mindsets and narratives

Narrative Building Blocks for Helpful Thinking

1. Talk to persuadables (not hard to persuade)
2. Lead with the cake (the better world)
3. Surface people's intrinsic, collective values
4. Explain better (don't just describe problems)
5. Understand WHO is trusted and why

1. Audience defined by their position on your issue

Base

Those who understand and will amplify your message

Potentially Persuadable

The bulk of the population whose views are not strongly held and whose thinking can be affected by how you talk or frame an issue

Hard to persuade

Those opposed to our policies and who are very unlikely to change their minds when we use a different message

2. Vision. A better future is possible

SELL the CAKE (NOT the INGREDIENTS!)

3. Bring intrinsic values to the surface

4. Better explanations lead people to effective solutions

5. Use messengers that connect people with new narratives

- Don't assume formal experts, institutions are trusted by your audience
- Use messengers with shared values of audience
- Equip that messenger with an effective narrative strategy
- Repeat

Case Study: A narrative for transport information

Wellington's Brooklyn cycleway 'Island Bay all over again'

Tom Hunt · 05:00, May 03 2021

Those for the cycleway to Brooklyn ask for people to give it a fair shot, but the community is already divided.

A cycleway to the Wellington hilltop suburb of Brooklyn has residents divided and is being described as "Island Bay all over again".

APRIL 14, 2020

Enjoying the people-friendly streets of lockdown? Let's make them permanent

Dominant narrative:
Them versus us

Default
communication:
solving car & financial problems

New: Opening streets/independence for people

Case study: A narrative for vaccination

Dominant narrative: individual risk & fear

Default
communication:
believe science & experts

New: collective wellbeing & immunity

Case Study: A narrative for climate

Dominant narrative: Individualism/ or denial of issue

Default
communication:
fear/or individualism

New narrative: collaborative action at scale

5 things people in public institutions can do

1. Collaborate so you know the changes that will make the biggest difference
2. Seek to understand mindsets - how people think and reason about them, and the narratives that hold us back from understanding and accepting these changes: People care but this is not the same as understanding the effective solutions to support
3. Understand how implacable opponents will seek to control the information landscape and prevent deeper understanding
4. Avoid default communications - it performs poorly
5. Use evidence based communication to frame evidence and policy solutions that work

Our Vision

Narratives for Change: Questions

Jess Berentson-Shaw

theworkshop.org.nz